

PREFACE

The integration of technology into education in recent time has received global attention, and the urgent need for education to be delivered in innovative ways using technology has also become expedient in the twenty first century. This is the focus of the 2nd interdisciplinary conference jointly organized by the Tai Solarin University of Education (TASUED) Nigeria and the University of Cape Coast (UCC), Ghana. The conference was held at TASUED between 22nd-25th August, 2016 and we therefore present to you this edited proceedings of the conference and we make bold to say that the content of this proceeding has provided a road map to the infusion of technology into education at all levels in Africa. Teachers as the cornerstone of education must come to terms with the use of technology in the delivery of qualitative education.

The conference attracted scholars from educational institutions from African countries who share the vision for the use of technology for the delivery of education in Africa. Education, we think should be more than education for education sake, it must be value laden with technology as the driving force.

The next conference holds at the UCC in Ghana in 2017, we gladly acknowledge the contributions of the following persons towards the success of the conference.
